HEALTH CARE

Healthy Growth

Medical tourism is a multi-billion-dollar industry as an increasing number of Americans travel abroad for various treatments, including major surgeries and procedures. And San Diego's location near the Mexican border makes it an ideal hub for businesses interested in establishing a presence in this fast-growing slice of the health care industry. One such local startup is Satori World Medical, led by Steven Lash, which works with consumer-driven health reimbursement accounts funded by employers.
